

The consolidation of media is totally antithetical to a democracy which is based on the wide availability of opinion and knowledge